"Life goes not backward, nor tarries with yesterday." Gibran's statement in The Prophet is an apt choice for the theme of this year's Lair. As students at Wheeling High School, we must look to the future. No one can predict what is to come, but we, as students, can influence it by getting the most out of our years at Wheeling. Just as a wildcat grows in its lair, we must make Wheeling a home in which we can prepare for our various destinies. Creating, learning, building, working, living—all are vital and necessary parts of our lives at Wheeling High School. The Lair policy is to emphasize the necessity of this forward look, to stress the need for future planning, and to bring home the idea that the creation of the future lies in the ever-crucial now.

"Insert pencil and turn. Gee, it's not so hard!" says Mary Ann Gerceovich.

Learning is an ever-present part of life; yet, only through conscious effort can a person advance himself. At Wheeling High School, students are offered the chance to enlarge the scope of their learning and focus its direction. By availing himself of the varied academic curriculum, a student may acquire and improve upon skills which can benefit him throughout his lifetime. "Life goes not backward nor tarries with yesterday," and Wheeling High School students strive to learn and to improve themselves so that they can go forward with time and not be left in some forgotten past. By taking advantage of excellent educational facilities and heeding the guidance of a highly trained faculty, the Wheeling student develops from within himself a wiser person, better equipped to explore, understand, and meet the many challenges of the future. In fact, he does more than prepare to meet that future: he begins to create it.

Administration

As superintendent of District 214, Mr. Harold Slichenmyer is constantly planning, organizing, and observing. He devotes himself to the guidance of high school students, and, as executive of the school board, Mr. Slichenmyer takes the responsibility of supervising the activities within the high schools in District 214. A great many of this man's decisions affect us, as students of the district. Mr. Slichenmyer summed up his goal when he stated, "As the district continues to grow in enrollment, I hope it also grows in quality."

The school board, an integral part of our high school system, is concerned with the school curriculum and courses offered in the high schools in District 214, as well as the requirements for graduation. The board is constantly faced with many problems on which they must make the final decisions. An absolute requirement for any member of the school board is flexible thinking, which is necessary to cope with problems ranging from raising revenue for an educational program to, "Should the band play for the President?" The particular problem confronting the board this year is the exploding population within the district and the planning of future high schools to be built in the district.

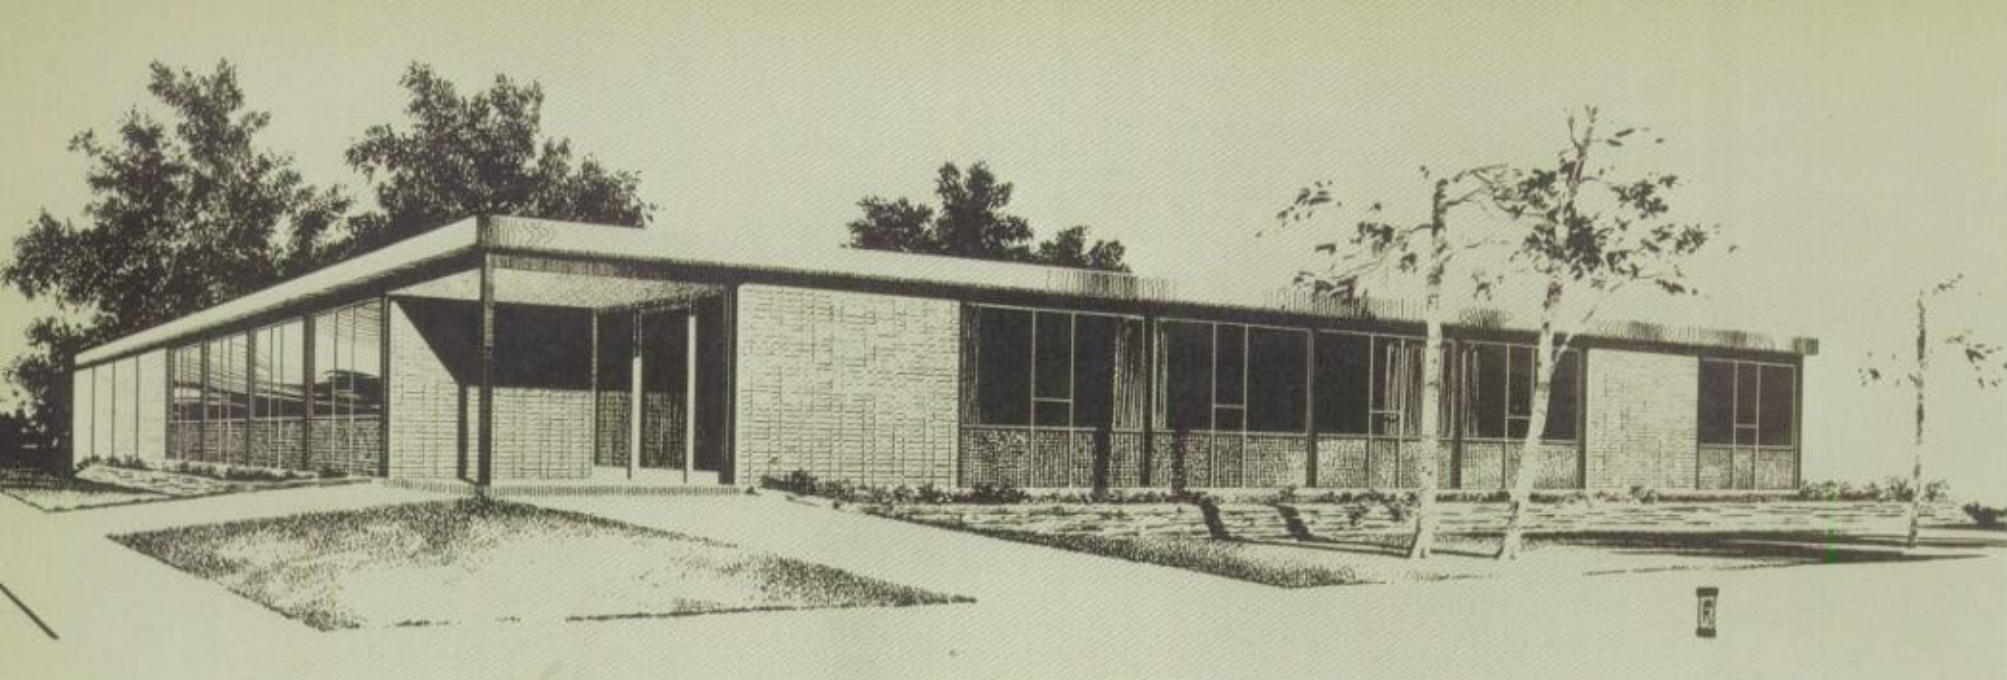

Wheeling High School is no longer just a glint in Mr. Slichenmyer's eye.

The central administration plays an important role in the organization, education, and activities of District 214. The chief executive officer is Mr. H. Slichenmyer, who is ultimately responsible for all high schools in the district. The assistant superintendent is Dr. Gilbert, whose primary concern is the educational program and advancement. In charge of the maintenance of budgetary and fiscal affairs is Mr. F. Coleman, director of business. The man responsible for employing staff members is the director of personnel, Mr. N. Lowry. In addition to these four men are five instructional co-ordinators: Mr. McLennon, Mr. Conrad, Mr. Lester, Mr. Fischer, and Mr. Miller. These men work with the various divisions and departments in the high schools. Two other members are Mr. Whiteside, the co-ordinator of guidance programs in the district, and Mr. Randle, director of adult education and the summer school programs.

Instructional Co-ordinators: Mr. R. Conrad, Mr. H. Lester, Mr. E. Fischer, Mr. D. Whiteside, Mr. C. Miller, Mr. R. McClennan.

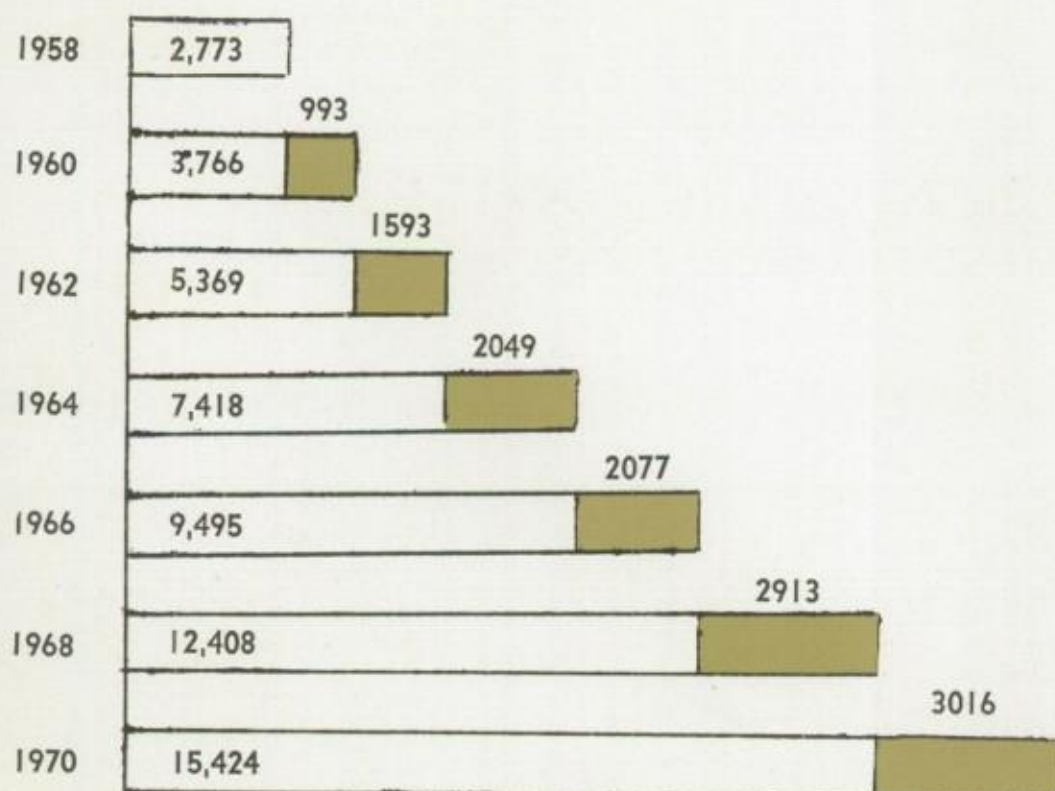

The appearance of the school, the reputation and loyalty of the student body, and the high academic standards of Wheeling are all a part of our principal's concern. Dr. Hill's dream of seeing Wheeling High School move straight to the top in scholastic as well as athletic endeavors spurs him on. A graduate of the University of Minnesota, where he earned his Master's and Doctor's Degrees, Dr. Hill states, "The goal for which I am striving is that Wheeling High School will become a place wherein individual talents are recognized and cultivated." Dr. Hill has the drive and know-how to lead us in that direction.

Our principal, Dr. Hill, backs the Wildcats all the way.

The Wildcat's Most Avid Backer

Our High School District 214 is growing in numbers every year.

In the past eight years the population of High School District 214 has increased considerably. This growth in population has accounted for all the new housing construction, grade school construction, and, of course, high school construction of which Wheeling is the most recent. With the general increase in the population of this area comes an increase in the high school enrollment. A fifth high school for the district is already well into the planning stages and there will be more to come. The graph to the left shows the high school enrollment in this district for the past eight years and the projected enrollment for the next four years, in white, compared to the growth of this enrollment, in gold.

Mr. Clarence Miller, the assistant principal for administration, is a necessary part of Wheeling High School. He received his Bachelor's Degree at Western Illinois University and his Master's Degree at the University of Illinois. Still continuing his education, Mr. Miller is completing advanced work at the University of Chicago. He served one year at Forest View High School as an administrative assistant before coming to Wheeling High School. Some of the various functions which he has are being in charge of the attendance office; taking appropriate action in cases of excessive absence, tardiness, or truancy; assisting in handling of student disciplinary problems; assigning of pupils to buses; and the maintenance of order at student activities. His help in the guidance of Student Council is especially appreciated by many students. In these ways, Mr. Miller aids both instructional and extracurricular functions of Wheeling High School.

Working Together to Instrument School Policy

The voice we hear each morning reading the morning announcements is that of Mr. Thomas Shirley. As assistant principal for instruction, his duties are quite extensive. Mr. Shirley received both a Bachelor's and a Master's degree in mathematics at Illinois State Normal University. Before coming to Wheeling High School, he served as Director of Adult Education at Arlington High School for three years and assistant principal of Forest View High School for two years. This background certainly qualifies Mr. Shirley to handle his various duties. These consist of the supervision of all extracurricular activities, the preparation and maintenance of student records, the registration and scheduling of students, homeroom activities, and the summer school program. Mr. Thomas Shirley, a skilled and busy man, contributes greatly to the organization and functioning of Wheeling High School.

Special Education

Wheeling High School has been equipped with excellent facilities for special education. Those that benefit from this program are the blind, the partially seeing, students with impaired hearing, perceptionally handicapped, EMH, and TMH. From these special areas in teaching comes the ability for the student to gain as much as possible from his high school education. Mrs. Peters assists blind pupils by acquiring books in braille or taped on records. Volunteer students transcribe books during study halls or after school. Another phase of our special education allows students to advance at their own rate of learning. Available are the tape recorders, head phones, lab materials, and a reading accelerator, which enables students to improve themselves.

The school library fulfills a vital need of both students and faculty at Wheeling. The purpose of the library is to help the students gain a better understanding of the knowledge obtainable from the printed press. By making use of the library, students can broaden their understanding of history, people, and current issues and events. Supplementary reading includes a wide variety of books, magazines, newspapers, and other periodicals. The regular library staff aided by student librarians, help students to locate materials.

Informing, Guiding, Helping Students Find Their Way

The guidance department of Wheeling High School is designed as a program of service to the students, teachers, and parents. Its basic goal is to help the individual student to help himself in meeting the challenges that are facing him. The counselors of Wheeling serve the students in many ways. Some of their varied duties are aiding students with high school problems, orientating new students, and providing college and vocational information. Others specialize in helping students to find after-school or part-time jobs.

Mr. Erickson advises one of his students on job openings.

Keeping a school such as Wheeling in running order would be a big job for anyone. The custodial staff, under the direction of Mr. W. Salzer, could certainly testify to this. Through planning and hard work they have helped to maintain an air of cleanliness and order throughout the building and surrounding area. Along with the help of student custodians, they have added to the appearance and safety of the school by keeping all equipment in top working condition.

Mr. W. Salzer

Feeding 1600 students a day is a job that keeps Mrs. Hughes and her kitchen staff of nineteen busy full time. Keeping the cafeteria clean, planning, preparing, and serving well-balanced meals are the main functions of the staff. All of this contributes to efficient and well-organized lunch periods. In addition, the staff often prepares food for special school activities such as athletic events, TPC suppers, and awards banquets.

Mr. Sang is the chairman of the English-Fine Arts Division.

For the first time in District 214, the Division Plan is being utilized. If carried out successfully here, it may be followed by other schools in the district. There are six divisions under which each subject is classified. All the subjects in one division are related to one another, such as math and science, or English and fine arts. Each division has its respective chairman. The six chairmen have various administrative functions consisting of assisting the teachers and coordinating the various subjects under the particular division. In order to achieve this, he is given additional time during the school day. As Mr. Shirley stated, "Educationally, the coordination of similarities will provide for a stronger, overall more coordinated system." Moreover, carry-over value should increase. In the Division Plan the likenesses of subject matters are stressed. This should help to overcome the discrepancy between a highly segmented educational system and the integrated education which one needs to face the complexities of modern civilization.

Wheeling's art department, equipped equally as well as many university art departments, offers a wide variety of areas to art students. Art I and Art II, which are beginning courses, introduce students to the various art mediums. Art III and IV courses, designed for studio work, let each student specialize in a particular field of art. Various areas in which a student can specialize include painting, jewelry, graphics, etching, or engraving. The art department centers its activities around problem-solving and creativity. Finding a new solution to a problem or creating a unique idea presents a challenge to all art students. Mr. Frieden, Wheeling's art instructor, believes that a high school art department can be the center of all school activities. He believes that art teaches students to think, and, therefore, can be applied to all aspects of learning.

Wheeling's Music Department has already made its presence known to all students at Wheeling and to many others outside of the district. Work in the department is being done during class hours, as well as after or before school in small ensembles. The choral department has four separate classes: Mixed Chorus, Girls' Glee, Freshman Boys', and Freshman Girls' Chorus. The band at Wheeling has become well-known through participation in the halftime shows, as well as several trips to play for President Johnson. Both band and chorus have taken part in a number of concerts including the Christmas concert, spring concert, and the annual District 214 music festival, of which Wheeling High School was the host school. According to the two music instructors, Mr. Jenks and Mr. Depoy, aside from teaching the basics of music notation, the music department inspires students to a greater appreciation of all aspects of music.

Self-expression Through Organized

Sophomores Mike Meagher, Melanie Van Petten, Greg Shornden, Walt Krier, and Russ Phillip participate in discussion in their English class.

The goal of the English Department is to help the student in self-expression through organized writing and thinking. Courses in English I and English II review the essentials of grammar which are necessary in future years of education. In addition to this, students are introduced to the world of literature through studies of poetry, short stories, and non-fiction. English III offers a chronological study of American literature, giving the student a greater awareness of the heritage in literature left to him, as an American. The English department also offers courses in journalism, for those interested in writing for the Spokesman, and dramatics, for those who wish to make the stage their career. Sophomores spend a semester in learning the fundamentals of public speaking, and more advanced speech courses are offered to students who are interested in this area.

Through the Study of

The Department of Foreign Languages, headed by Mr. Rife, is a vital part of our high school curriculum. The goal of the foreign language department is to develop the student's ability to speak, understand, read, and write the language of his choice. In addition, this department provides students with a greater understanding of people, their customs, and their history.

In the first and second years of foreign language study, emphasis is placed on the spoken language, comprehension of basic grammar, and the essential aspects of reading and writing the language. In the more advanced courses, knowledge already obtained through basic studies is channeled into active application by reading the history and literature of the country.

Past and Present Cultures

The Social Science Department seeks to create an understanding of past history which aids in the comprehension of the present world situation. World History has now two new texts to help students understand the basic ideas presented in the course. As well as learning facts, they read essays pertaining to the time period they are studying. Thus, students become aware not only of facts, but of the implications of these facts. The actions and ideas of the peoples of the past greatly affect our lives. This is the reason for which American History is a required course. Through the study of past works, such as The Constitution, and the discussion of present events, such as the election, students gain a greater understanding of their country. Man is a creature of time. Only through understanding time can he understand himself and his surroundings.

In this highly technical age, an understanding of science is not only beneficial, but necessary to the individual. Through biology, the students learn the classification of living things. They also begin to understand the vast network of relationships among living things and their environments. In physical science rudimentary physics and chemistry are taught. To keep abreast of new theories, a new text is being used in the chemistry department. The courses offered in the field of science teach the student enough of the basic concepts so that he will be able to understand the scientific world and use this understanding constantly to enrich his daily life.

Science and Mathematics

A person is involved in mathematics in any career for which he is preparing. Both changing a recipe and studying electronics involve mathematics. The courses offered in mathematics range from basic math to Advanced Algebra II and Trigonometry. For the more advanced student, the accelerated math course is offered to give him additional challenge while helping him prepare for college work. All courses place emphasis upon accuracy in work as well as correct reasoning. These are two of the most important goals of this department. Thus the student is preparing for his future, no matter what direction it may take.

Not only preparing girls for careers as homemakers, but helping them to develop skills which will be useful during high school as well as in the future are two of the main achievements of the Home Economics Department. On the freshman and sophomore levels, girls learn the basic skills of preparing meals, and basic sewing techniques. Through these, the students gain experience in skills which are necessary to all future homemakers. Learning does not stop at the mastering of basic skills, however. If a student has a particular interest in one of the many fields of home economics, she may take one of the semester courses which concentrate study in one particular area. Such courses offered are child development, interior design, family meals, scientific cookery, clothing, tailoring, and dressmaking. There are two labs used in the Home Economics Department, the food lab and the clothing lab. To facilitate learning, they are furnished with the latest modern equipment.

Providing Preparatory

Taken in proper sequence, the industrial education courses at Wheeling offer excellent background training for those who are interested in careers in the practical arts. Industrial Arts I is a good starting point from which to embark on a more comprehensive program. This course is divided into four parts, devoting one quarter to each of four branches: woodworking, metals, electricity, and mechanical drawing. From the most basic to the most complex, such as advanced electronics and engineer drafting, all industrial education courses teach the important technique of being able to co-ordinate skills of the mind with manual dexterity to make a project come out according to plans.

Understanding complex machinery requires more than skills taught in books.

The business courses at Wheeling are designed to meet everyone's needs. For those who want to become proficient in basic skills merely for their own benefit, courses such as social typing and shorthand are offered. Secretary- and business-bound students can take courses such as general business, bookkeeping, accounting, business English and business law. Students can even gain experience in the procedures of the average office day through courses such as office practice and office occupations which are centered around stenographic, secretarial, and clerical work. Distributive education is a co-operative program for students interested in sales and merchandise. This course includes fifteen to thirty hours of work per week under supervision. The business education department illustrates better than many that Wheeling High School applies stress to both preparatory and terminal education.

and Terminal Educations

Three points of attention: book, keyboard, instructor.

Any last requests, Miss Bolt?

Miss M.L. Bolt; B.S. in Ed., Eastern Ill. Univ.; G.R.A., Pep Club.

Miss C. Arendt; B.S. in Ed., Northern Ill. Univ.; G.R.A., cheer-leading.

Miss L. Betts; B.S. in Ed., Eastern Ill. Univ.; G.R.A., Drill Team.

Mrs. Seymour; B.S. in Ed., Eastern Ill. Univ.; G.R.A., Orchesis.

Wheeling High School students exercise not only their minds, but also their bodies. Through a comprehensive program, the girls of Wheeling have become skillful at a variety of sports such as basketball, badminton, softball, and even courses in modern, folk, and social dance. These various activities not only provide enjoyment during the gym period, but in addition, help them develop basic skills useful outside of school. Besides learning these skills, with the help of Miss Bolt, Miss Arendt, Miss Betts, and Mrs. Seymour, the girls also learn one of the most important points which can be gained from a good physical education program such as Wheeling has: that is, the meaning of good sportsmanship, a quality which is valuable all through one's life.

Calisthenics + Sports = Aching Muscles

Jump ball presents challenge when one is just learning.

Coordination, alertness, and effort are essential qualities for success on the horizontal bar.

Practicing wrestling holds requires diligent concentration and competent instruction.

When parents of Wheeling High School boys read how important President Johnson considers physical fitness, when they hear a voice on the radio urging them to examine physical education programs in the schools, they can listen without alarm. Wheeling High School is concerned with the student's physical well-being as well as his academic development. In daily P.E. classes, boys are introduced to sports which they might not meet at home, such as wrestling, gymnastics, and weight training. Others keep their muscles in shape with rigorous calisthenics. Variety is one of the keynotes of Boys' P.E.—both in kinds of subject matter and in goals of the class. Wheeling is striving to build up more than tough teams to enter inter-school competition. It wants a smart, strong, skilled student body.

I KNEW I shouldn't have let him use my locker!

Classes

I'm sorry, Sonny, but your bus just left.

Each student, merely by attending Wheeling High School, is entrusted with the many responsibilities belonging to his class. Through the year, the members of each class forgot that they had once been members of other classes in other schools. Ignoring these past divisions, each class went forward to build unity and school spirit. The instruments of this important work were the class boards. Each class sponsored dances and school events, aside from supporting the athletic teams of the class. In these ways, each student—even if he wasn't a member of the class board—could support his class and contribute to its functioning. In order to improve itself, any organization must be made of members who work efficiently and effectively. Our classes, made of such members, strive to achieve these goals and better the entire school.

All School Events

I hate to mention this, but you're stepping on my foot.

To be truly educated, a student must not only attend school and study his assignments, but he should also participate in school activities in order to become a real part of the school, to learn about people and how to cooperate with them. This part of learning is not taught in classrooms, however. It must be obtained through the initiative of each student. Through meeting and talking with other students who share the same interests, by improving athletic skills, by working with other members on a team, in combining efforts with other students in order to create a play or produce a concert, a student will enjoy himself. Yet, at the same time, he will advance himself by preparing for the future. The additional responsibility of representing the school in these ways can serve only to improve the student's abilities to cope with and lead other people.

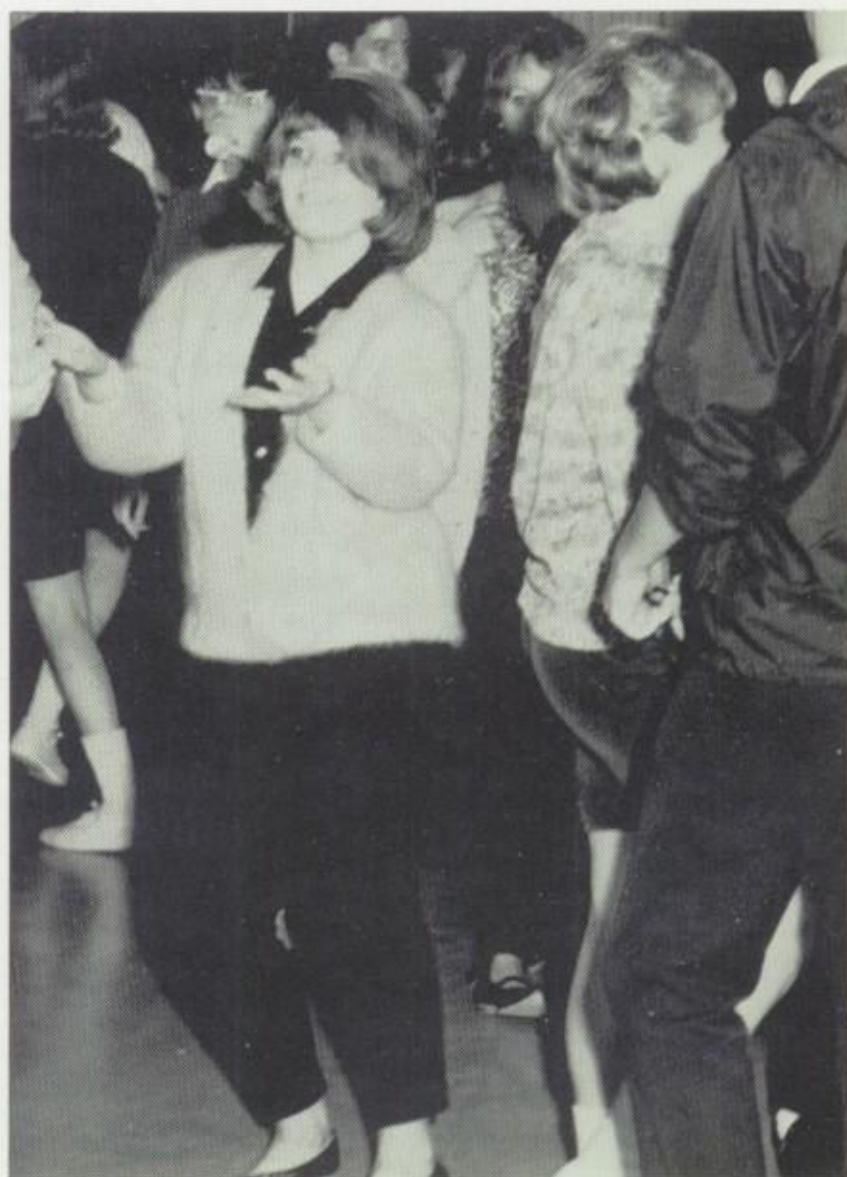

Jim Bowker displays strength and skill on the still rings.

A little louder!

What'd I say!

The Lair copy staff has its own little "Comedy of Errors".

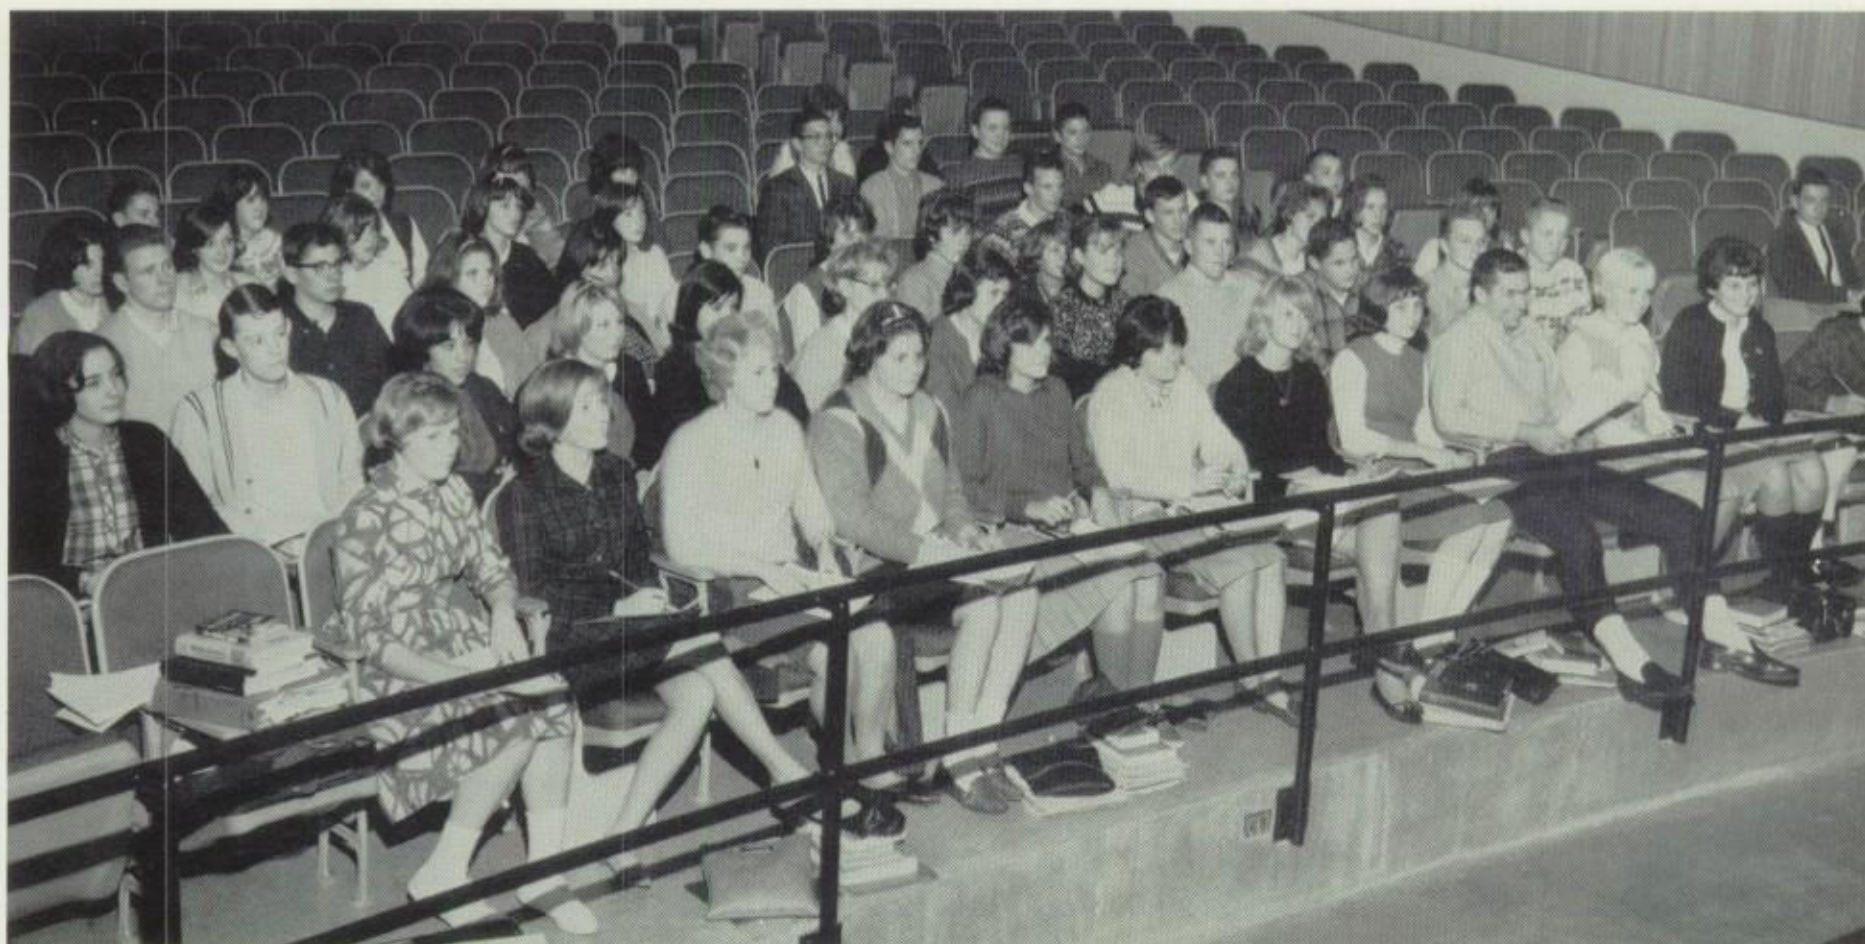

Is this what these phones are for? For students to work late?

High School Politics

Axiomatically, students are a part of any school. Yet, ironically, in many cases, the students' ideas about that school which focuses around them are neglected. In order to utilize these ideas and opinions, Student Council operates as a form of government wherein the student has a chance to express himself and the student body, to bargain with the administration. In order to facilitate communication, each homeroom has one council member. These members, under the leadership of Mark Newman and the guidance of Mr. Miller, work to serve the school and the student body. They are aided in this work by Vice President Linda Edwards, Recording Secretary Jeanne LaBandt, Corresponding Secretary Ann O'Donnell, and Treasurer Bob Krug. The Student Council also served the student body by sponsoring the Student-Faculty Basketball Game and the Variety Show and by publishing a student directory. During the Christmas season, the members distributed cards and decorated the building. Working with the American Field Service, they arranged for an exchange student to come to Wheeling next year. During the year the members also had the opportunity to participate in a Student Council Workshop at Forest View and a District Convention at York Township High School.

Life of the Wildcats

Yearbooks are made to hold memories of dances, sports, and student activities. However, the memories brought by this book to the Lair staff will be of an entirely different nature. Two recollections will be dominant: the thrill of having been the first Lair staff to establish year-book traditions, the first to record the school's birth and earliest history, and the immense problems created by being the first in a school void of traditions. All staff members will recall the organizing; the planning of layout, page by page; the writing of copy; and the hectic hurrying which filled the year. As deadlines changed from shadowy threats to threatening realities, precious hours of vacation became work sessions. And work sessions became the 1965 Lair.

If you think they're confused—you're right!

Editors of the Lair and Spokesman, Ann O'Donnell and Kathie Barnes discuss those threatening realities—deadlines.

Newspaper work is a serious job as Bernie Zinkgraf, Kathy Stephenson, and Jeanne La Bandt strive to meet another deadline.

Voice of the Wildcats

Reporting various aspects of student life, taking a stand on problems within the school, and speaking for the student body are all important functions of the Spokesman. Under the leadership of editor Kathie Barnes, the thirty-five member staff accomplishes this purpose. These energetic students collect news, write articles, and editorials, devise and plan page layouts, and check each page, word by word, before publication. Not content merely to report the news, the Spokesman takes an active part in initiating activities. It has sponsored a political poll and a Christmas short story contest. Overseeing all work is Mr. Nelson, sponsor of the Spokesman.

Movie projectors, tape recorders, and phonographs are among the equipment which the members of the Audio-Visual Club maintain and operate. Under the leadership of Mr. S. Berry, the club members take on the responsibility of planning all the audio-visual activities for the school. Members of the Audio-Visual Club find that helping to enrich the ordinary classroom situation can prove to be a lot of fun.

Tri-Chroma, sponsored by Mr. George Fredin, provides artistically inclined students with an opportunity for creative activity. The members of Tri-Chroma meet to develop both their individual talents and their standards of taste and judgment. This makes the students better able to appreciate and comprehend natural and man-made beauty. One of the five projects of Tri-Chroma enhances the school by decorating the display cases and bulletin boards in the foyer.

Spirit and Service

Those enthusiastic voices which cheer for our athletes at sports events and which are also heard seventh hour in the cafeteria every Thursday belong to the hard-working members of Wheeling High School's Pep Club. The enthusiasm of the members is always present whether they are promoting school spirit or sponsoring a food, clothing, and toy drive for needy families during the Christmas season.

"Be friendly and smile!" is the motto of the Hostess Club. This club, originally organized to provide guides for the Freshman Orientation, has reorganized since school started. With the help of Miss Johnson, their sponsor, the girls act as hostesses at such functions as T.P.C. meetings, Career Day, and open houses. The work of this club has helped create many favorable opinions of the school.

Voluntarily Working for Others

The girls who serve as nurse or office guides share one important quality: they are voluntarily working for the betterment of the school. These students give up study halls to work in the guidance, attendance, or nurse's office and help the staff by aiding other students and by delivering passes.

More work than meets the eye is required for a smooth-running library. The library staff is assisted by student librarians who work before, after, and during school. The Library Aids perform such duties as working in the magazine room, organizing periodicals, and checking books.

The Modern Music Masters, or Tri-M, is an honorary organization composed of students who prove excellence both in music classes as well as in other academic classes. Membership is by invitation only, with the new members being inducted in a formal ceremony in the spring of each year. This year's Tri-M, led by officers Gary Bozilinski, Sue Sommers, Nancy McDonald, George Drake, and Liz Keith, have attended a pot-luck supper at Maine East and have sold concessions at a basketball game to boost their treasury. Organized as a service group, members held a concert for the faculty of District 214. Future plans of the club include sponsoring a summer music scholarship to an outstanding music student.

The Wildcat Marching band brings fame to Wheeling.

The Wheeling Wildcat Marching Band's designation as the "Official Presidential Band" was "a great honor and a once-in-a-lifetime event," states Paddock Publications. The band proudly received the Presidential Band Flag, which may be displayed whenever they make an appearance.

This year Wheeling also enjoys the music of six vocal groups, under the direction of Mr. Charles Jenks. The ensembles sing at church and civic meetings in the Wheeling area. The other groups perform at the Fall, Christmas, and Spring concerts, in the District Music Festival, and at assemblies.

Beauty in Precision

The Wildcat Drill Team—not just marking time.

Under the direction of Miss Linda Markulin, the forty girls which comprise the Wheeling High School Drill Team display excellence, spirit, and enthusiasm as they brighten football games, basketball half-times, and school assemblies. Led by captains Linda Miner and Donna Pancamo, the members plan marching drills, co-ordinate steps with music, and continually work toward achieving perfection. Under the direction of Mrs. Seymour, the members of Orchesis also entertain at basketball games and school assemblies. Besides their daily class time during fourth hour, the Orchesis also holds rehearsals after school to perfect their modern dance performances. The highlight of the year for Orchesis members is their Christmas show.

A language comes alive only when one understands the people who speak it. The foreign language clubs at Wheeling acquaint interested members with the customs, history, and special problems of the people of other countries. This is accomplished through filmstrips, guest speakers, and general discussions. Language clubs also function as social gatherings with a cosmopolitan flair.

Two other special interest clubs are the coin and bridge clubs, in which students can compare ideas and gain information. Members of the coin club find it especially helpful to compare their own collections with those of other students. Novice bridge enthusiasts find that membership in this club increases their interest along with their capabilities.

Enjoyment Entails Concentration

Exploring Ideas and Issues

Debating is more than just being able to talk faster or more emphatically than one's opponent. The beginning, sub-varsity, and varsity debaters learn how to reduce an argument to the logic behind it, to research a topic thoroughly, and to organize a case under the guidance of Mr. Goldman and Mr. Larsen.

Topics ranging from censorship to Communist China are areas of discussion for the members of the Political Forum Club. Starting the year with an examination of political party platforms, the members and the sponsor, Mrs. Kiewit, exchanged opinions on many vital issues and listened to speakers discuss current problems and events.

Conveying a Mood Through Words

Learning and perfecting the art of self-expression is the area of concentration for those students participating in Individual Speech Events. This is accomplished by presenting original speeches—as in extemporaneous speaking, original oratory, and after-dinner speaking—or by interpreting the works of others, in the form of prose, poetry, or dramatic readings. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Schachter help the students prepare for inter-school tournaments by teaching them speaking techniques.

Building an image, creating a drama, requires work not always recognized by an audience. The members of the Drama Club, united by their interest in the various facets of theatrical production, work to make a script become more than spoken lines. The script is developed until it becomes an artistic unity. Club membership consists of those who appear on stage and the students who build settings or work on sound, lighting, and make-up crews.

Recreation Supplements Education

The newest club to join the roster of extra-curricular activities at Wheeling High School is the Ski Club. Because of the growing popularity of this sport, the Ski Club was formed to teach members new and better skiing techniques while providing transportation to and from local ski areas. Weekends find the members spilling onto the snowy slopes during the trips which the club sponsors, joining the ever-growing number of ski enthusiasts.

The Girls' Recreation Association, or G.R.A., gives girls an opportunity to participate in intramural activities. The sports include volleyball, basketball, gymnastics, and softball. The Girls have a chance to release their energy and learn basic rules of the games. The girls also hold a Mother-Daughter night. Under the leadership of a board, elected by the members, the club is sponsored by Miss Bolt, Miss Arendt, and Miss Betts.

Youthful Ambition Keynotes a Successful Life

The Future Nurses, Future Secretaries, and Future Homemakers clubs have a two-fold purpose. As well as providing the students with an opportunity to meet with others who share their mutual interests and ambitions, they are important in preparing for a career. Through these clubs, members learn more about the necessary education, the personal qualifications, and the job opportunities associated with their chosen fields. This year these clubs have sponsored guest speakers, field trips, skits, teas, programs, and service projects to help orientate members with the jobs they hope to hold.

Logic in Action

Wheeling High School students are offered the opportunity to study the world of science outside the regular classroom. The math, biology, and chemistry clubs transport members from the mundane world of ordinary high school life to that of logic and experimentation. In the math club, sponsored by Miss Schumacher, students become more familiar with the world of numbers and become proficient in manipulating these figures so that their esoteric meanings may become apparent. The biology club, sponsored by Mr. Anderson, has for its goal the promoting of student interest in the area of natural science. This is accomplished through field trips, lectures, and films.

"Let's see now, is this equation balanced?" is the question asked many times during the year by members of the chemistry club, trying to solve chemical problems and exploring the realm of the unknown in chemistry. This club is sponsored by Mr. Ring and Mr. Bowles, who help teach the members the importance of chemistry. Another club at Wheeling which explores the ramification of matters of science outside of the classroom is the radio-electronics club, sponsored by Mr. Griffith.

Educational and Occupational Opportunities

Diversified Occupations, a relatively new form of vocational training, is one of the course plans offered to juniors at Wheeling this year. The D.O. Program, as it is often called, alternates on a half-day basis of regular high school studies and on-the-job training as an employee. Juniors who enroll in this program graduate with a regular high school diploma plus experience and a thorough knowledge of the trade in which they wish to continue.

Distributive Education, much like the Diversified Occupations Program, offers on-the-job training coordinated with school studies. Unlike D.O., which develops such trades as beautician, tool and die making, and sales work, D.E. is concerned only with occupations where the employees are directly engaged in merchandising activities such as retailers and wholesalers. A regular high school diploma is earned in D.E., just as it is in D.O..

Distributive Education. Kit Burgess, Tom Bochniak, Don Laessig, Gerald Koeppen, Ren Sanfilip.

Steve Groot exhibits the intense concentration needed to succeed in gymnastics.

The Athletic Department, headed by Mr. Eliot "Bus" Ormsbee has jurisdiction over all branches of athletics at Wheeling High School. It is the responsibility of the department to handle all scheduling of athletic events, and supervise the purchasing of all equipment.

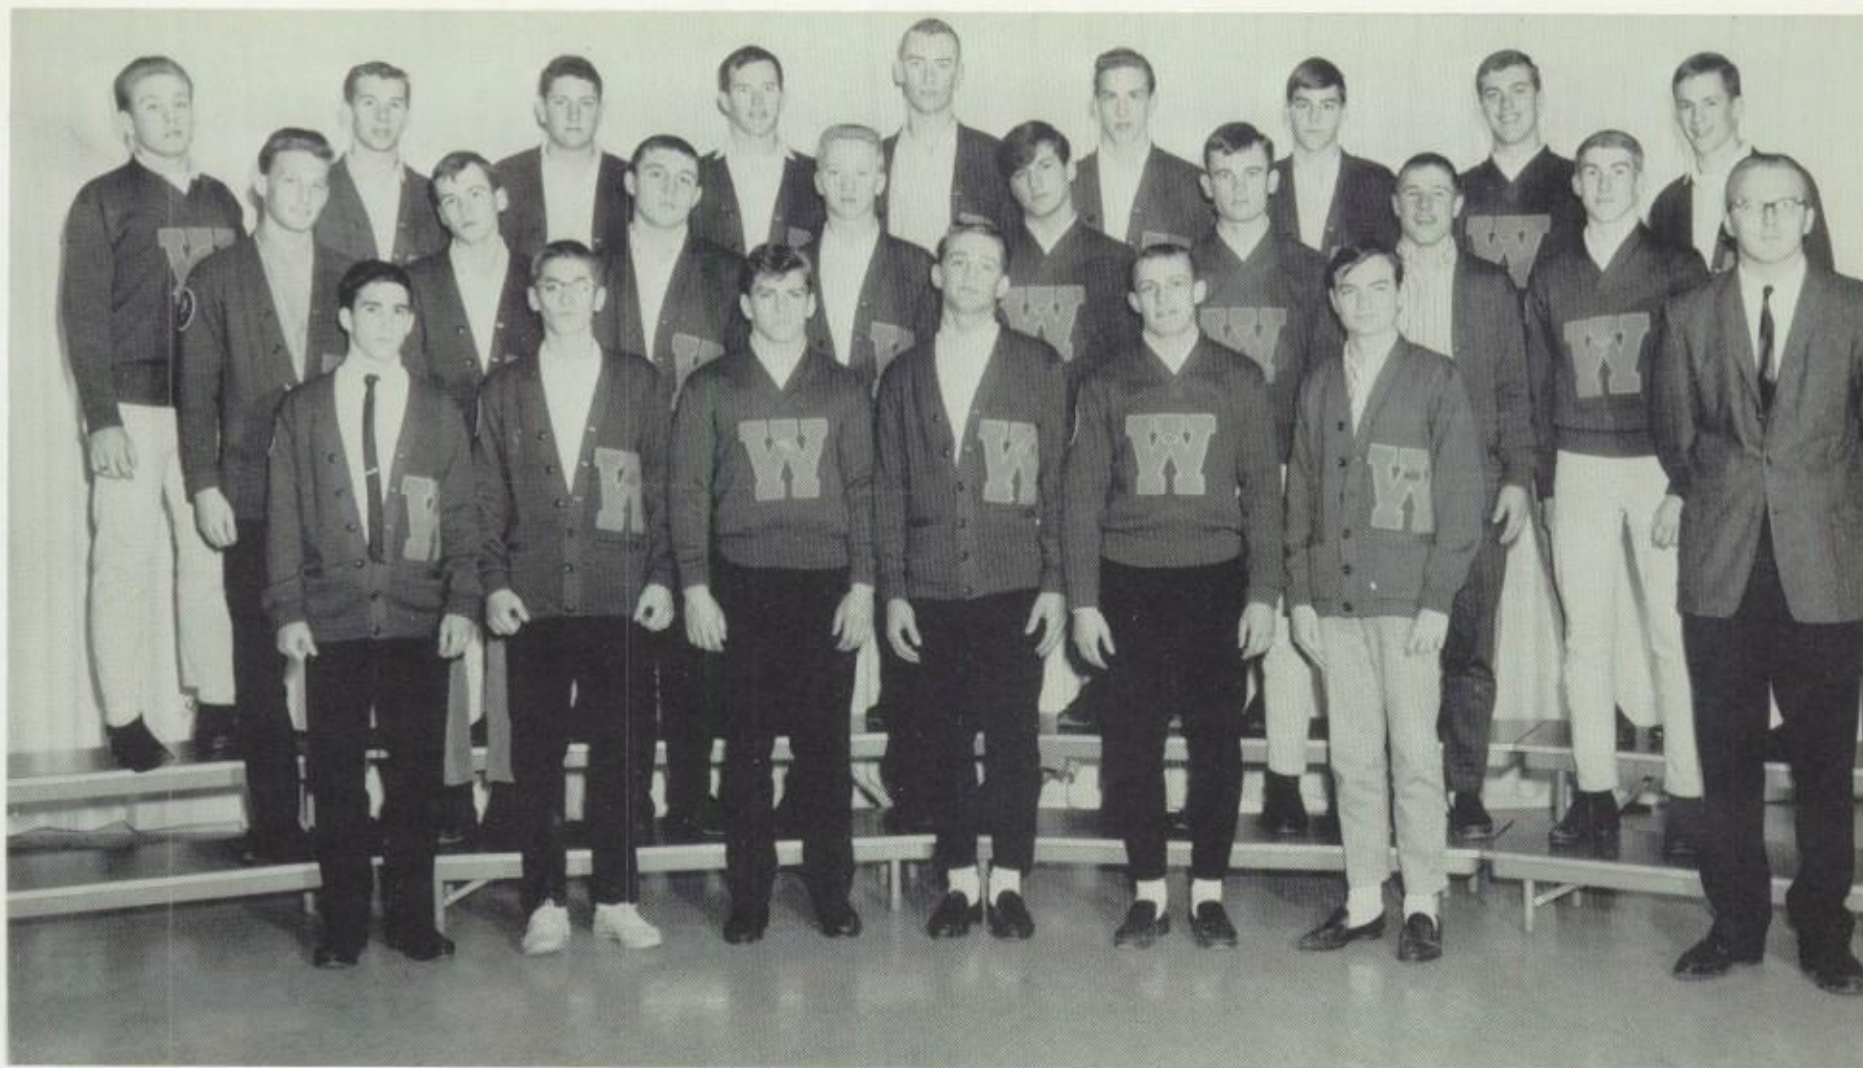

In the education of many students, the days spent in athletic competition are just as important as the hours spent in the classroom. It is on the playing field, whether grass, cinder, or hardwood, that habits of mental and physical discipline, good-sportsmanship, and the important abilities both to lead and to follow orders are developed. Through long and tiring hours of practice, these traits, necessary in all phases of life, are improved until perfected for upcoming competition. Every coach stresses to his athletes the importance of looking toward the future to the forthcoming contest. Once a game is played it is forgotten in preparation for the next struggle. All aspects of athletic competition hinge on a look-ahead attitude. For these reasons, the future, not the past, is important.

Athletic Excellence Recognized

The Varsity Club, under the sponsorship of Mr. John Hoffman, is a club dedicated to improving Wheeling High School in every possible way. Only varsity lettermen can belong to this selective organization. Initiation requires that the pledges work five long hours at tasks ranging from shoveling snow and mopping the field house floor to polishing the glass backboards in the gym.

Every treasury needs money, and the Varsity Club's is no exception. Its efforts have been directed toward such profitable undertakings as sponsoring a coke dance, and co-sponsoring the Fall Festival Dance and the faculty basketball game against Fenton High's faculty. This year's Varsity Club headed by President Jim Whittington, Vice-President Tony Stoik, Secretary Carl Meisenheimer, and Treasurer Paul Fiegen, had the responsibility of establishing tradition for the many clubs to come.

Hard Work—

Varsity gridders tear apart the sawdust foe.

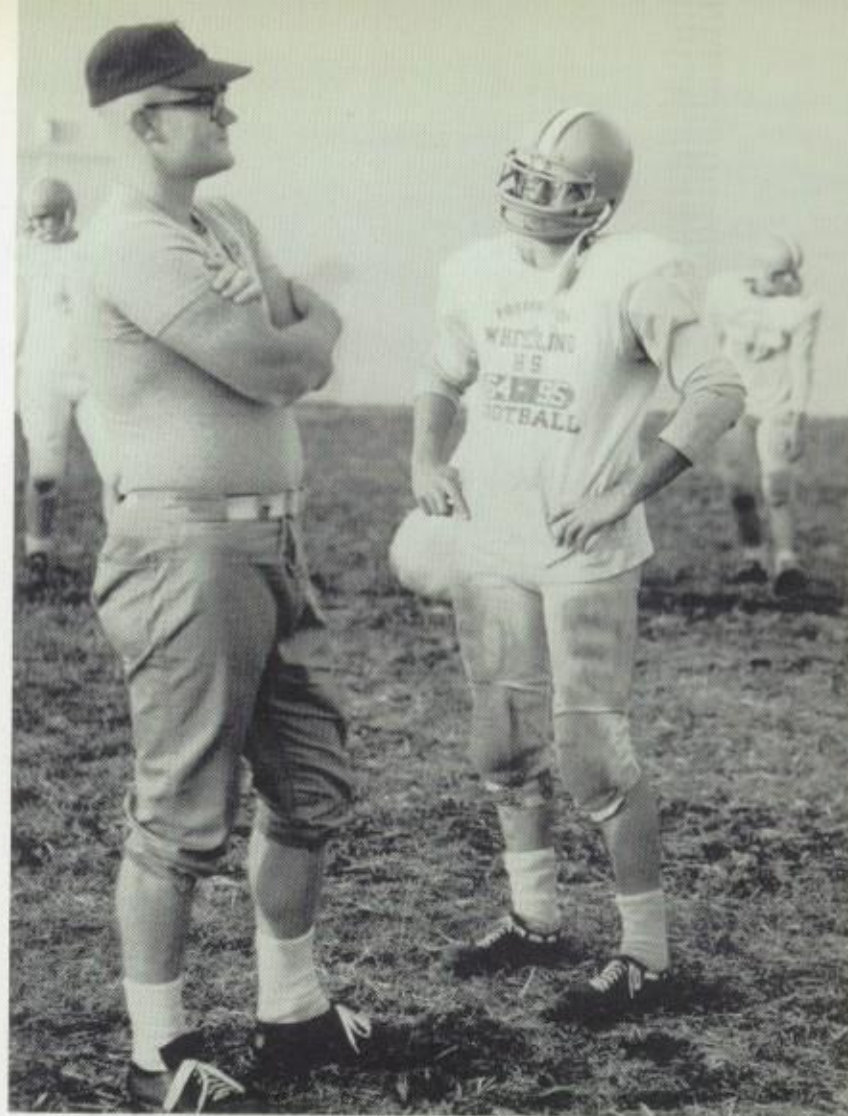

For Wheeling's varsity gridders under Coach Daletski's supervision, the football season began long before the first game. As early as the first days of August, the Wildcats began their drive to get in shape. Organized practice started two weeks before the opening of school, with two practices a day.

Although the 'Cats experienced numerous setbacks during this, their first year of varsity play, there were a few bright spots that offer hope for next year. The sparkling play of halfback Jim Bowker and end Ken Traversone were highlights all season. Also, the sophomore team, which shared the Mid-Suburban title while losing only one game, stands as a promising source of talent for the coming campaign.

This year's fine sophomore squad, under coaches Selvig and Tipsword, finished the season as Mid-Suburban co-champs. Their wide open offense, led by standout quarterback Rich Haddock, and their tough defense proved to be too much for all but Deerfield. This excellent record did not come easily. It was the end result of long, hard hours spent on the practice field, hours of working to improve blocking and tackling skills, hours of working at football that the spectators don't see. This is what makes a winning football team.

The freshman football squads were excellent in performance this year, according to the football coaches. Mr. J. Miller and Mr. A. Kraft coached the "A" team this year, and Mr. J. Hoffman and Mr. J. Miller put the "B" team through their rigorous training. Coach Kraft states that the best games the "B" squad played were those against Prospect and Wheaton. The "A" team commented that the game against Deerfield, in which they won seven to zero, was their finest match. Next year we can all look forward to a first rank sophomore team.

Wheeling's varsity harriers, led by Coach Mike Owens, posted a disappointing 2-9 record for the season but showed much promise for the '65 campaign. The end of the arduous two-mile hike usually found junior Bill Lytle, who finished the season with a fifteenth at the district meet at Deerfield, at the head of the pack. Also leading runners were Paul Fiegan and Doug Stienman, both of whom were hampered by injuries in the latter part of the season. Other lettermen on the team, Jim Cladwell, Dave Eaton, and Karl Meisenheimer, helped carry the load during the long season.

High Hopes

The members of the frosh-soph cross-country team feel that for an entirely new team, their performance at each meet was exceptionally good, even though the harriers won only a few meets this season. The first win was against Glenbrook North, with Wheeling finishing with 22 points, and Glenbrook 35. There stands vast room for improvement, as the cross-country team has just started to develop its runners. The boys are confident that next year the team will produce better results. This year's first and second men were respectively Greg Shornden and Scott Polken. Their rank was determined by their performances during the season on the two mile cross-country course. The coach this year was Mr. Gary Tjarks, a teacher in the social science department. Coach Lyle Owens also helped in the preparation of the team.

Coach Mike Owen's varsity cagers struggled to overcome a two-fold handicap injuring their first year of varsity competition. They were hindered by lack of experience, as the squad contained no boys with previous varsity experience. The second obstacle between them and success was the newness of the school. Most varsity teams have had two or three years of playing as a unit and have learned to work as a well-coordinated squad. Wheeling's varsity cagers have not had this experience, as the starting five has boys from three different schools playing. In spite of these barriers, the 'Cats did have several individual players whose outstanding play continually sparked the team. They were Mark Newman, John Ferguson, and Jerry Kerr.

The team was paced all year by the cage play of three boys; Rex Peterson was the outstanding ball handler. Skip Grandt, the number-one performer under the boards, handled the rebounding. Greg Fydeski's accurate shooting from the outside provided the leading offensive punch.

Coach John Miller was pleased with the performance of the varsity swimming team, especially in instances where Wheeling freshmen were swimming against seniors. Surprisingly enough, they overcame the disadvantages, placing high in the ranks. '65's high scorers were John Hittman, Rick Pa-gankoph, and Andy Black.

Wheeling on the Go

The track season gets under way each year indoors. Wheeling's indoor track team has at their disposal some of the finest facilities in the area. The track proper is one-eleventh of a mile long and is one of the biggest in the state. The rest of the field house is devoted to high jumping, pole-vaulting, and the shot-put.

Wheeling's varsity track team was coached by Mr. John Hoffman, who served as an assistant to Russ Attis at Arlington High for two years.

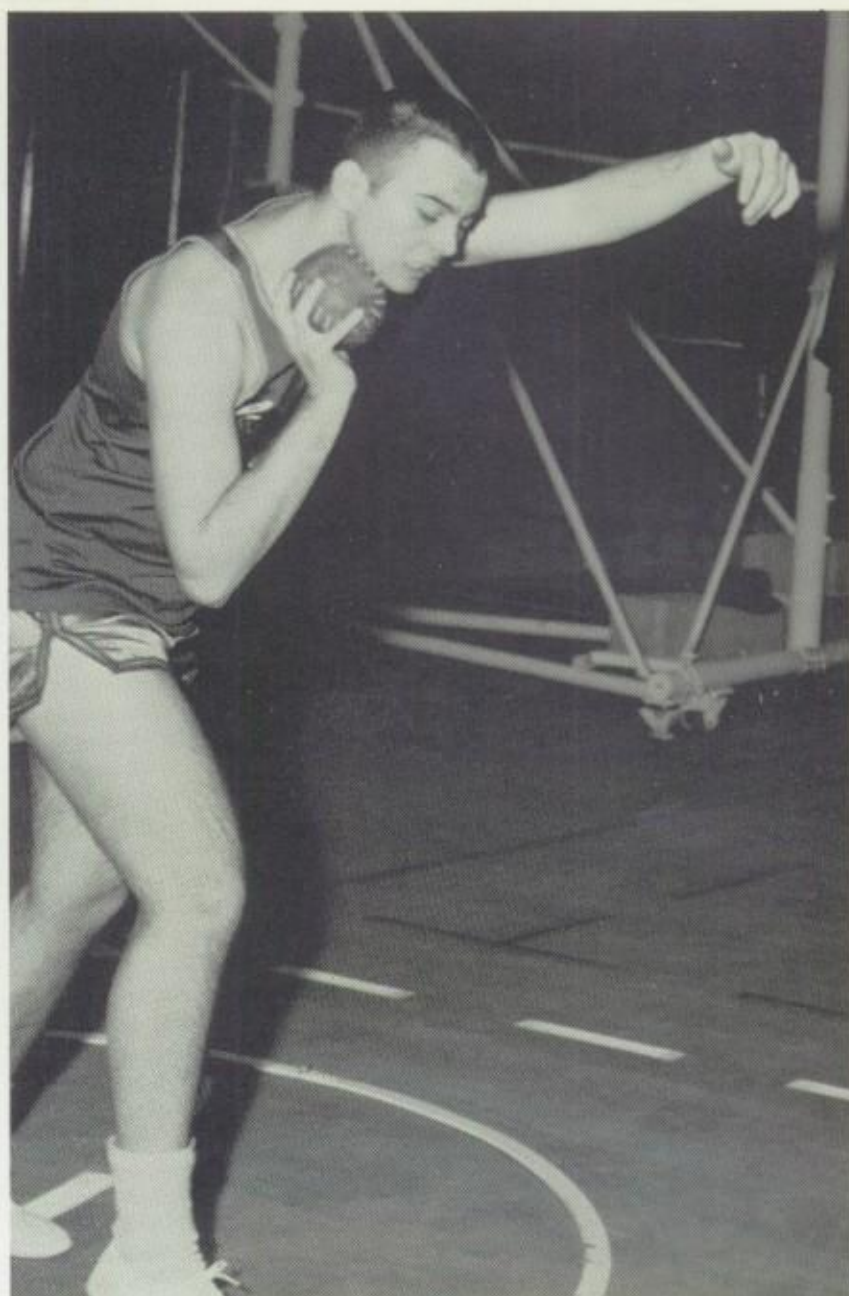

Wheeling's outstanding thin-clads are Jim Bowker and Bill Lytle in the sprints, Bob Bromley doing the hurdling chores, Wayne Iversen in the pole-vault, and John Lemerande in both the discus and the shot-put.

The frosh-soph track team handled the same rigorous schedule as the varsity team this year. The line-up for this squad was uncertain because this year was one of constant changes with sophomores being shuttled up to compete on the varsity level and freshmen being used to plug the resulting gaps in the soph ranks. As a result of this, the young runners' records mean little, their function having been as utility men for the varsity team.

One thought in mind: victory.

Gymnasts' Record Proves Their Prowess

Wheeling's first varsity gymnastics team finished the season with a respectable fifth in the conference meet at Glenbrook South. Throughout the season Coach Wayne Selvig counted on six boys to carry the main load in competition. These six boys were led by Jim Bowker, who was defeated only twice and took second at the conference final. Other outstanding performers were Jerry Fontecchio and Rick Dyson, who provided a one-two punch in tumbling and trampoline. Other standouts were Don Savage on the side horse, Greg Shornden on the parallel bars, and Mike Bangs, who did the honors in the tough all-around category.

Frosh-Soph Gymnasts on the Rise

By finishing third in the conference meet this year, Coach Rogers' frosh-soph gymnasts have continued the success enjoyed by all of Wheeling's sophomore athletic teams. The frosh-soph gymnasts have exhibited skill in a variety of areas, causing Mr. Rogers to believe that the '65-'66 record will top this year's. The coach relied on seven boys in competition. These boys were Bob Johnson, who also stars on the horizontal bars, and Larry Keene, tumbling; Craig Delazynski and Lonnie Davis on the still rings; Craig Ovesky working on the parallel bars; and Mike Allen, performing on the side horse.

Competing in Quadrangular Meets

The Wildcat varsity grapplers, under the direction of Mr. Art Kraft, had a rough season this year, but they show much promise for the upcoming matches. The wrestling squad competed in a variety of matches this year. The quadrangular meets involved four teams from separate schools all competing against each other. Wheeling took part in a district quadrangular tourney against Arlington, Prospect, and Forest

View. Perhaps one of the reasons that Mr. Kraft is so optimistic about the upcoming battles is that two of WHS's wrestlers did exceptionally well in that match. Carl Meisenheimer, a junior, placed third in the district, while Dave Eaton, also a junior, came in fourth. Other anchor men on the team are Larry Knack, Frank Aborreno, and Ted Armstrong.

Grapplers Display Skill and Agility

Wrestling is a sport which requires skill, alertness, and agility. Coaches Frank Miller and Robert Schulze exerted much time and effort in training the grapplers in these essential qualities. Aching muscles, caused by calisthenics, warmups, and practice, were common ailments among members of the frosh-soph squad. The boys handled roughly the same schedule as the varsity squad, also competing in quadrangulars and duals in which only two teams compete for the honors. The coaches singled out several boys who are possible candidates for the varsity level next year, and who also spent some time on the J.V. team. These boys were Bob Meitson, Ken Holliday, Phil Pete and Ray Weidner. Mr. Miller and Mr. Schulze are confident that next year Wheeling's teams will pose a threat to the other schools in the district.

Pitching for a Win

Tom Manderscheid exhibits pre-season determination.

Like many other new schools, Wheeling has its share of problems. One of the main problems faced this year was that of forming high quality athletic teams. Wheeling is well staffed with a number of excellent coaches, among whom were Mr. Chernicky and Mr. Owens. These two men were responsible for forming Wheeling High School's frosh-soph, junior varsity, and varsity baseball teams.

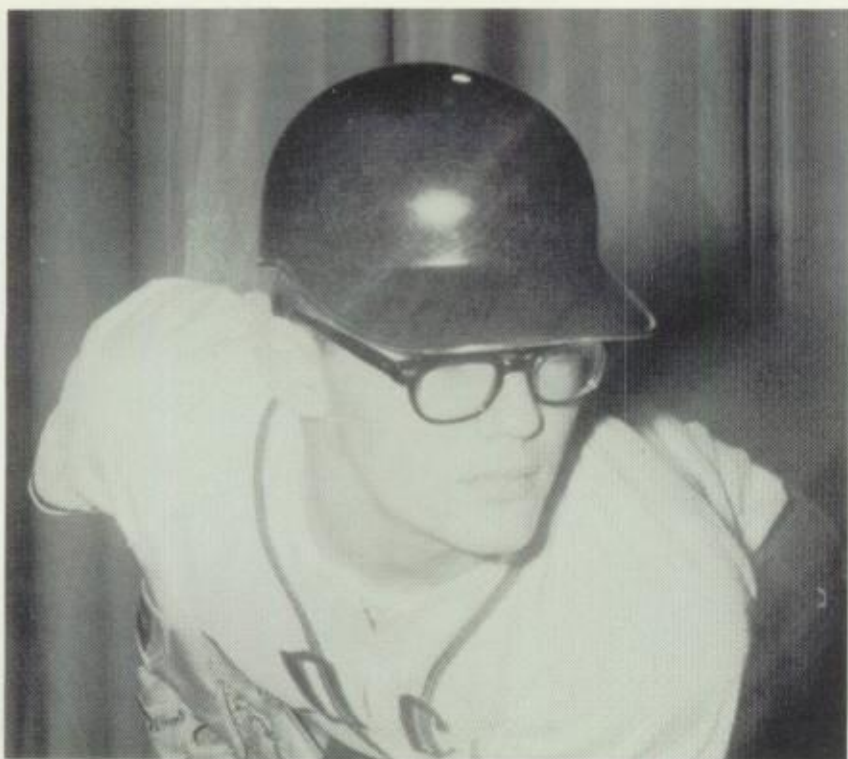

The first requirement for a top team is the players. Tryouts for the team were held in the early spring and were open to all boys.

The second requirement for a baseball team is teamwork. Many hours of practice were put in after school trying to form a unit from individual skills and learned strategies which proved to be helpful on the diamond.

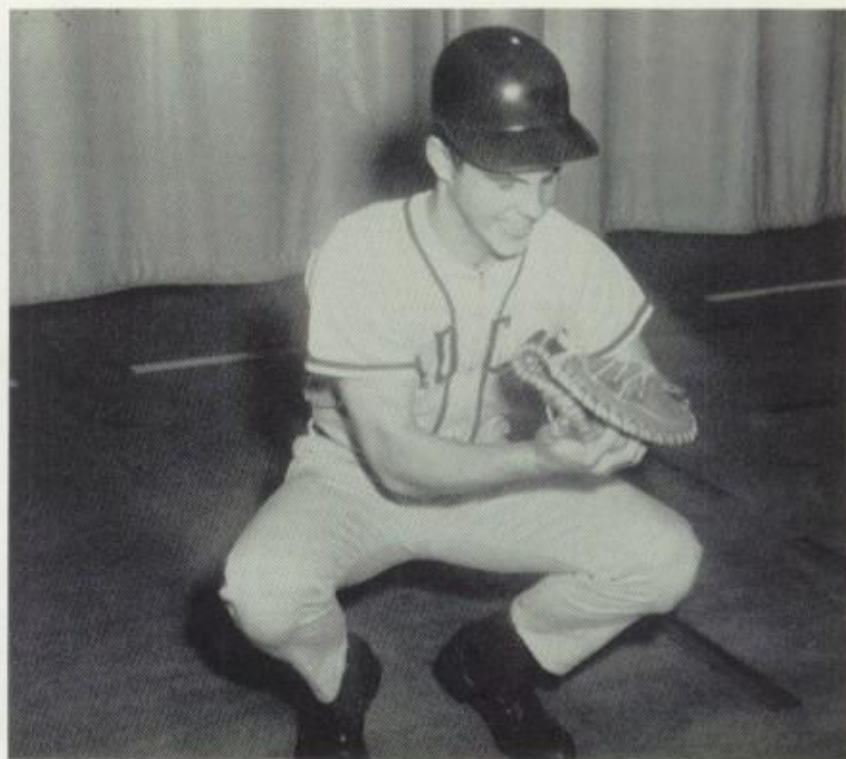

The third requirement for a team is initiative and the will to win. W.H.S. certainly qualified in this area. The Wildcats were ready to go in their first game of the season against Conant High School on April ninth.

"Over the inside corner, strike!"

"Two down, one to go," calls Bob Krug at the end of a perfect pitch.

Mr. John Berry's varsity golf team played a schedule of twelve matches plus the district and conference meets, with all home games being played at Long Grove Country Club. Wheeling's golf teams are especially fortunate, for the new fieldhouse has outstanding facilities for indoor golf practice. In addition to the indoor driving range, there are also provisions for sand shots from a built-in trap. This year Mr. Berry counted on seven boys to bear the brunt of the attack. These boys, Bob Boenig, Dave Quirsfeld, Dick Fontecchio, Mike Saar, Dan Kelsey, Steve Poulos and Al Eisenstein have all caught the coaches' attention by exhibiting skill in some phase of the game.

Wildcats Drive to Victory

Steve Poulos' swing sends the ball sailing high into the air.

Both on the green and off, golf is a game which requires skill and precision. The practice season began on March first with twenty-one frosh and seven sophomores reporting for practice. Though the snow still lay heavy on the ground and winter's icy winds kept golfers indoors, this proved to be no handicap in starting off the practice season. The excellent facilities in the field house allowed the linksmen to be well prepared by the time the weather permitted outdoor practice. In the beginning of the practice season Coach Berry singled out three golfers who he felt bore watching. These were Greg Timm, Craig Saar, and Steve Sanelli, who proved to be valuable to the team. The frosh-soph team handled roughly the same schedule as the varsity this year.

Wheeling Netmen Raising a Racket

Coaches for tennis this year were Mr. T. Ecker, coach of the varsity team, and Mr. J. Greer, coach of the frosh-soph team. Mr. Ecker and Mr. Greer were willing to take any boy, whether he was experienced or whether he did not know the difference between the handle and the head of the racket. The fundamentals of tennis were taught to all persons new to the game. Twenty-five boys, some experienced and some inexperienced, attended the first meeting of the tennis team.

Tennis players practiced long before weather permitted.

Concentration—an important element of tennis.

Wheeling's varsity cheerleaders are Donna McKinnon, Linda Morales, Sue Ryan, Leslie Taylor, Eileen Boden, and Kathy Millay. The J-V cheerleaders consist of Sharon Carter, Linda Rank, Kathy Taylor, Bonnie Gordon, Barb Joynt, Mary Plushkis, and Lynne Wood. Both groups work with their sponsor, Miss Markulin, to improve their skills. Cheers can be heard echoing through the empty halls many seventh hours which become practice sessions. Active symbols of school spirit, the cheerleaders work to promote this spirit not only on the athletic playing field or in the gymnasium. They make posters and spirit buttons. For these reasons, being a cheerleader becomes a full-time job for these girls.

Traditions in the Making

The Fall Festival seemed to symbolize the successful opening of Wheeling. The festivities began with nominations for three princesses, who were presented at a special assembly. After voting, students anxiously awaited the bonfire and mixer where the results were to be disclosed. Friday night finally arrived, as amid a frenzy of cheers and music, everyone gathered around the bonfire and then thronged into the cafeteria for the mixer. With tears of joy, Linda Edwards, Leslie Christenson, and Barb Joynt were chosen to reign at the rest of the festivities. The disappointment of Saturday's football game quickly vanished that night as the week's festivities drew to a close at the Autumn Daze Festival Dance.

Talent Displayed

On February thirteenth and fourteenth, expectant audiences gathered to see Wheeling's first dramatic production, Our Town, by Thornton Wilder. The play, set in Grover's Corners, New Hampshire, was one of stark simplicity, involving chairs, tables, and ladders as scenery. While the stage manager related much of the tale, the actors pantomimed their actions. The three one-act plays—Aria da Capo, Overtones, and Trysting Place—were presented in the Little Theater on February nineteenth and twentieth. Of these, Aria da Capo was chosen to go to the contest at Deerfield.

On February first, the most outstanding vocal and band students of the District 214 high schools presented the Third Annual District Concert. The guest conductors were Mr. George Cavender, who directed the bands, and Dr. Bernhardt Westlund, who conducted the festival choruses. A variety of music was presented with the band and chorus combination of "Born to be Free" climaxing an enjoyable evening of music.

The combined festival choruses create dynamic sounds at the district music festival.

Rhythm and Romance

The highlight of the Christmas season for many this year at Wheeling was the Sno-Ball, held on the twenty-third of December. At the dance, sponsored by the Junior Class, couples enjoyed an evening to remember under a myriad of brightly colored ornaments and dazzling snowflakes. Chosen to reign over the ball was Char Winfrey. She was picked by the band from among all the junior girls. The queen was presented with a crown and a bouquet of red roses. The proceeds from this major dance helped to fill the Junior Class treasury.

"Lollipops and Roses," the Orchesis sponsored mixer held on the sixth of February in the cafeteria, was an informal affair open to all Wheeling students. The emphasis of the evening was on fun as everyone danced to the music of "The Shadows." The high point of the evening was the crowning of the queen, Nancy Zlotowski. All the money made at the mixer went toward the purchase of the costumes for the Orchesis Spring Show.

Three elements of time: past, present, future.

Three abstract concepts—concrete in people and events.

Construction of Wheeling High School—the past realized.

Attendance of daily classes—the present, alive.

Time becomes a direction: forward.

Because this was the first yearbook publication at Wheeling High, the '65 Lair presented a special challenge to all those who were involved. We would like to thank all of those people who helped turn our first publication from a hope into a reality.

To Mrs. Penny Hirsch, faculty advisor, we express our gratitude for her guidance, for suggestions, and for helping us over the rough spots.

We are indebted to Waling Studio for meeting our many demands in photographing Wheeling High. Our thanks also go to Bob Fischer for occasionally helping out in our photography work. We thank Mr. George Fredin and Sharon Vincent for designing the cover for the '65 Lair.

For their technical assistance we thank the Taylor Publishing Company, and especially our representative, Mr. Bernard Callahan, for his frequent visits and concerted efforts on our behalf.

We want to thank Wheeling's athletic department for helping us include pictures of spring sports, although the teams were hardly formed, and uniforms had not yet arrived.

Our greatest appreciation must go to the staff members, who despite lack of previous experience in yearbook publication, contributed time, effort, enthusiasm, and talent in creating the '65 Lair.

The Lair Editors
